Dear Reader:

We would like to call to your attention Vanderbilt University Press's list of titles in Sociology--titles which might prove particularly helpful to you in your courses on organizations, sociology of religion, urban and rural sociology, and family and community structure.

For instance, POWER IN ORGANIZATIONS, edited by Mayer N. Zald, our latest Sociology title, already this year has been adopted for several courses. It is being used in both undergraduate courses and graduate seminars in formal organizations, organization theory, and management.

We invite you to read about POWER IN ORGANIZATIONS, and other significant works as well, in the enclosed brochure. If you would like to order any of these books, complete the order form and send it, along with your check, in the envelope provided. If you later decide that you do not wish to keep a particular book, simply return it and we will send you a complete refund.

Sincerely yours,

Susan J. Utt

Sales and Advertising Manager

P.S. Also, if you later adopt a title for course use and at least ten copies of the book are ordered by your college bookstore, notify us and we will send you a refund for the copy you purchased.

NEIGHBOR AND KIN

Life in a Tennessee Ridge Community

An absorbing account of an egalitarian, unstructured, highly intermarried colony of middle-Tennessee hillfolk, wherein half the families live a co-operative, peaceful life while the other half shoot at each other regularly.

tables, notes, photographs, bibliography, index, 178 pages, $5.00

By Elmora Messer Matthews

"Outstanding among recent studies of bi-lateral endogamous societies for the length of the field work (almost two years), for the use of pertinent historical documents, and for the thoroughness of the functional analysis. The major thesis of the book is that deme structure correlates positively with (1) egalitarianism; (2) the value of nonachievement, which the author discusses in terms of expressive and creative rather than instrumental orientation; (3) strong same-generation as opposed to vertical bonds; and (4) an absence of sanctioned authority over property and behavior."

—American Anthropologist

"Applying patterns noted by eminent sociologists to her careful research in local customs and values, (the author) has submitted an original, valid, and timely analysis."

POWER IN ORGANIZATIONS

Power, both as it is exercised within organizations—for control, for decision-making, for effecting or inhibiting change—and as it is created by organizations, is the subject of these papers and commentaries presented at the First Annual Vanderbilt Sociology Conference in March 1969. The sociologists, psychologists, political scientists, and public- and business-administration professionals represented examine different aspects of power in various settings, from manufacturing firms to a major medical school—hospital complex. Theoretical studies include a general look at the political life of organizations, a presentation of mathematical and economic predictors of organization structure, and a discussion of adaptive mechanisms used by organizations faced with a threatened or changing environment.

notes, references, index, 336 pages, $10.00

Edited by MAYER N. ZALD, Professor of Sociology at Vanderbilt University.
